A fresh perspective

I find that leadership podcasts targeted to women are often a little limiting. But, Tiana brings on interesting guests that go a little deeper. Episodes go beyond the sparkly #girlboss message for tangible leadership advice that works for all people in all different settings.

Bio

From Travel Influencer to building a Social Media Department for a $1B Corporation

Tiana Madera built the Social Media & Influencer Department for the 1800Flowers.com Enterprise — that's 12 brands and counting! She knows a thing or two about pitching to Execs, building teams, mentoring, and creating a path that never existed.

After four years of building her career in corporate, it was time to expand her possibilities. Moving to Los Angeles and launching Torch — a podcast for womxn in leadership focused on life, career, and love — provided the space to connect with like-minded leaders, host workshops and get back into what she loves... building something new.

Tiana comes from a colorful background. She was born in Hawaii, raised in Miami, and has changed her career a few times all in pursuit of creating a life that she wants. After a divorce, it was time to dig deep and reflect. Moving through the most poignant time of her life, she created a new sense of self, new experiential wisdom and the ability to truly connect and be vulnerable. Her teacher, Gary Zukav, who is also Oprah's spiritual guide, has transformed her life in every way.

So, ya, Tiana has experience in marketing, building, production, and community. Plus, she has a deep passion for personal development and creating a vision for life that leads to endless possibilities.
